

a manifest containing meta-data about said self-contained software package; and at least one reference to an initial content source, said initial content source including instructions related to a particular intended functionality, b1

whereby said manifest and said at least one reference to said initial content source are automatically received by and processed within [a network client environment] said browser environment, said initial content source and said instructions controlling operation of said [network client environment] browser environment in accordance with said instructions to achieve said particular intended functionality.

<THIS SPACE LEFT BLANK INTENTIONALLY>